After Which the British Retired to Estcourt-Matcking Calling for Reenforcements-The Protest of Methuen Against Dum-dum Bullets

QUEENSTOWN, Cape Colony, Nov. 25 .-Four hundred colonial rebels, including Mr. Munek, a former magistrate at Barkly, have joined the Boers at Barkly.

It is reported that the Boers are marching from Barkly on Dordrecht. It is feared that there will be a general movement in the Queenstown district in throwing out of votes in Nelson county favor of the Boers.

There is remarkable enthusiasm among the troops over General Gatacre's address, of last Sunday, advising his men to watch the irregulars, as they understood the country, and to note what kind of people they were dealing with. The irregulars regard the address as a tribute to their use fulness, and have had several thousand copies of it printed. LONDON, Nov. 25 .- A despatch from Estcourt, which was brought by courier to Mooi River, gives a fuller account of the engagement at Willow Grange. It says "A strong force left Estcourt Wednesday afternoon. In the evening a naval gun was dragged to the top of Lobber's Kop, a high hill five miles to the southward. "Just before daybreak, Thursday, the West Yorkshires and East Surreys, who had been lying on the ground all night during a terrific storm, took Brynbella Hill at the point of bayonet, the Boers making a hasty retreat to the ridges to the westward. The Boer gun was not captured, but thirty prisoners were taken. 'After several hours of stiff fighting on the left flank around Willow Grange, the mounted infantry went to the relief of the exhausted infantry. The naval gun was useful in shooting across the Boer lines, but did not have the same range as the Boer gun, which threw shells into the British troops from a distance of ten thousand yards. The shells did no damage

PRETORIA, via Delagoa Bay, Nov 25,-In an interview Lieut, Winstor Churchill, correspondent of the "London Morning Post," who was captured by the Boers near Estcourt, said that the confinement of the prisoners was close, though having regard for the circumstances of war, no complaint could be made against this.

He added that he had many discussions with burghers. They mostly regretted the war, which they declared had arisen from misrepresentations, but the spirit of the Boers in the field, in spite of their many privations, is most determined. Lieutenant Churchill believes that there is small toll at sunrise and later the refrain was taken up by other bells, until at 9 o'clock every bell in the city was sounding the every bell in the city was sounding the minutes, and the echoes far and near resounded with deep-toned reverberations.

PATERSON CLAD IN SABLE

Funeral Rites Performed Over the Late Vice President.

There was no work of any kind in Paterson today. Banks and business houses closed their doors, all the factories and mills and workshops are closed down, and no work of any kind will be resumed until Mon-day. The municipal offices did not open this morning, and the postoffice will close at 2 o'clock. Paterson is in the deepest mourning. All the dry good stores sold out their last yard of crepe and black drapery last night and today not a building of any kind is without some token o arning for the dead Vice President The big white city hall is swathed in black and white draperies, as are also the post office, the various bank buildings, the po lice stations, and the fire houses, Thousands of Mourners.

By 11 o'clock the streets leading to Carroll Hall and to Governor Griggs' house on Twelfth Avenue, were thronged with people while thousands packed the plaza around the Broadway station of the Sus-quehanna Railroad where President Mc-Kinley and his party arrived. The two companies of regular soldlers of the Fifth Artillery stationed at Governor's Island arrived here at 9:30 o'clock over the Erie Railroad and they were marched directly to the Second Regiment Armory on Market Street. Later in the morning the regulars left the armory and were distributed along the streets leading from Carroll Hall to the Church of the Redeemer, to perform police duty and act as an escort to the President. Never, probably, were tickets more cagerly sought after than were those entitling the holders to a seat in the Church of the Redeemer during the exercises today. Influential citizens and mu-nicipal officeholders asked for them in vain. Only twenty-five tickets were alloted to the city hall. Mayor Hinchliffe distributed them as well as he could, but many were necessarily disappointed.

The train bearing President McKinley, his Cabinet, and Justices of the Supreme Court arrived at the Broadway station of the Susquehanna Railroad at ten minutes to 1 o'clock. They were met by a committee of citizens and driven to Sussex House, the home of Secretary Griggs, on Twelfth Avenue. The party left for Carroll Hall shortly after 1:30 o'clock. The train bearing Senators. Representatives from the lower house and other national officers arrived at the Broadway depot at 1 o'clock. They were taken direct to Carroll Hall, Decorations in the Church.

The work of decorating the Church of the Redeemer was completed early this Evergreen prevailed, set off by heavy banks of white lilles and chrysanthemums. A band of smilax lined the walls on both sides of the church. Paims stood on all the windows, their tops reaching the band of smilax above. The windows were also festooned with lilies of the valley, orchide and chrysanthemums. The aisles of the were also lined with palms transforming the passageway into long avenue of green. The organ and the pulpit were lavishly decorated with white flowers. Before t pulpit were fonts covered with Americ Beauty roses, which rose to a height over eight feet. The effect among the prevailing white was striking. The casket rested before the pulpit and was covered with floral offerings. The pews were not decorated. Carroll Hall was not decorated to any extent, except in the library, where the body lay. The windows of this room were wreathed with orchids and lilies of the valley. The decorations in the church will remain over Sunday.

Among the floral offerings were the following: A pillar of American Beauty roses, from the Paterson Railway Company; a wreath of pink roses and hyacinths, from Wah Lee, a Paterson Chinaman, an old friend of Mr. Hobart; a broken column of Amer-

The floral pieces sent by the mayor and board of aldermen represent Faith, Hope, and Charity, a cross, anchor, and heart. The Hobart Guards sent a chair. The Sermon at the Church. The sermon at the church was preached by the Rev. David B. Magie, whose text was made up of short sentences of Scripture. He said:

"God alone is great. From everlasting to everlasting He is God. Of old He laid the foundation of the earth and skies, the Heavens are the work of His hands. They shall perish, but He shall endure, yea, all of them shall wax old as a garment, and as a vesture shall they be changed. Of His years there is no end.
"In this day of national calamity and grief it is fitting we should come unto the house of God and bow in submission be-house of God and bow in submission be-fore the most High God. Garret A. Hobart, the man whom this nation honors, the man whom it learned to trust, has fallen dead. 'The Lord gave and the Lord bath taken away, blessed be the name of the 'Peace hath her victories, no less renowned than war.' For these victories peace as well as war must pay the same costly price of toll and sacrifice, of suffer-ing, and, if need be, of life. The statesman as well as the warrior, has suffered and died for truth and liberty, humanity, and God. And if today no warlike sound is heard, none the less do we know this life was given in the service of this country, and its last official duties were done under the very shadow of death.

"This spirit of fidelity and courage was his by inheritance. The blood which flow-morning, and the wealth of floral display was a worshiper, and from its inception a was magnificent. There was not a yard of black in the church, not even on the pulpit black in the church, not even on the pulpit black in the church not even on the pulpit black in the church in the who reside in this city and knew and loved him well as a friend and neighbor recog-nize with great feeling the words he most requently used, 'He is a good man.'

He Loved His Fellow-Men. "No one ever had more friends, no one ever had fewer enemies, indeed, it may be questioned if he had an enemy. He made friends and never lost a friend and yet, he had opinions and expressed them freely. He loved, however, to say pleasant words and do kindly acts. His generosity was unbounded. No one can tell. No one knows the number or the greatness of the kind deeds he was constantly doing. He was never too tired to speak the cheering word nor too busy to do the kindly things him-self. He must be written down as one who loved his fellow-men. It is written a man that hath friends must show him a man that hath friends must snow him-self friendly. And it is true the poor and lowly feel that they have lost a friend. "It can be said of him, they did not know him who did not know him in his home. They knew him best, who knew him there. The load of business cares, the worry of political life, were there all and all together laid aside. In his most and all together laid aside. In his most happy home he found relief from every care, and carried from it, day by day, fresh courage and purposes. Alas, where our greatest Joys are found, we must find our keenest sorrows. On a pleasure trip in a foreign land, among strangers, he lost the only daughter of his home, a most gentle, loving spirit. He said, in speaking of the event, 'There seemed nothing left that could add to the bitterness of this sorrow.' Yet he did not complain, he took up again the work of life, and to many he seemed unchanged. But in the great sorrow was the beginning of the end. "If today we are called to learn the universal lesson associated with all human greatness, vanity of vanities, all is vanity, there are other lessons also we may learn. our keenest sorrows. On a pleasure trip there are other lessons also we may learn, as true and more cheering. It is true in-dustry and perseverence wins; it is true loving feelings awaken love; it is true kind words are the best things to say, and kind deeds the best things to do. There is a sphere in every true man's life, which is too sacred for even the dearest friends to enter. It is the relation of his soul to God. As his pastor, I may be allowed to say, that in the full possession of his faculties and in recognition of the inevitable end, he

Former Senator Call Issues a Sensational Statement.

le Alleges That James P. Taliatere Secured His Seat in Congress With Money Furnished by the Standard "The Industrial Commission can do nothing more important to promote the ends of its creation than to summon witnesses and either prove or disprove the fact, whether or not the Standard Oil Company in the person of H. M. Flagler and his lieutenant, Mr. Parrott, have controlled and are still controlling the nominations and elections of the public officials who have charge of the Oll Company-A Request for an Investigation Into the Matter.

In a statement issued today by former enator Wilkinson Call of Fiorida, Senator-elect James P. Tallaferro of that State is accused of having secured his sent in the Senate through alleged bribery, with money that is said to have come through the coffers of the Standard Oil Company. Senator Call sent one copy of the statement, which consists of twenty typewritten pages of matter, to the Industrial Commission, with the request that that body make an investigation into the manner in which, he alleges, the Standard Oil Com pany controls elections and legislation in Florida. Another copy has been sent to the Committee on Privileges and Elections of the Senate, and Mr. Call announced that he would make an effort to have Senator-elect Taliaferro unseated.

Henry M. Fiagler, of the Standard Oil Company, and a Mr. Parrott, are accused by Mr. Call of being men who furnished the money that brought about the election of Mr. Taliaferro. Mr. Call said this afternoon that he intended to push the matter to a decision.

ter to a decision. In his statement Mr. Call refers to the fact that he was elected four times to the Senate with a continuous service in that senate with a continuous service in that body of eighteen years, and that he was the acknowledged representative of the Democratic party in his State until four years ago, when, he says, Mr. Fiagler, of the Standard Oil Company, who owns mil-lions of dollars worth of property on the eastern coast of Florida, went into poli-tics in the State and took up Mr. Taliaferro as his candidate. Mr. Call then makes as his candidate. Mr. Call then makes the statement that Mr. Fiagler and his as-sociates bought the election of the mem-bers of the legislature, and proceeded to have Mr. Taliaferro elected, with the knowledge and consent of the latter.

Mr. Call asserts that he stands ready to prove that the votes of the people in Florida in two counties were influenced by the distribution of United States merchandise that was sold under a collusive condemna-tion by the authorities of the United States to the firm of which Senator-elect Talia-ferro is a member. These goods, he as-serts, were either gratultously distributed or sold for 1 cent or less a pound. He also partment charges that in other counties the Standard Oil officials deliberately suppressed the election of some members to the legislature, by the use of money, and in still other counties that they overcome the regular votes in the primaries by colonization. In other cases, he says, the election of some members of the legislature was ob-tained by the payment of poll taxes of unqualified voters with Standard Oil money.

Continuing, he says: Mr. Call's Statement.

cause of freedom, of education, and of God.
The ideals of his home life, under which he was trained, were of a high and holy character. They influenced and guided his life to its close. Had he lived as men ordinarily live he might have reached the limit of fourscore years. He has died in the ripeness of his powers; full of honors, not of years.

"The contestant states on information and belief, and stands ready to prove, that in the Senatorial election of 1897 the Standard Oil Company, or a member and official thereof, deriving great revenues therefrom, expended a sum of money equal to $100, 600, or more than that amount, in and be-fore said election, to control the same, and to debauch and corrupt the public morals and suppress and overthrow the will of the people fairly and lawfully expressed, and the said James P. Taliaferro was one of the active agents and persons aiding and on Smith abetting this expedition, and his success in obtaining the votes by which he claims to have been elected by the legislature of 1899 was the direct result of this unlawful and corrupt expenditure in 1897, as this contestant stands ready to make proof be Charges of Falsifying Returns. "The contestant further states, on information and belief that in the counties of St. John, the election returns in 1897 were deliberately falsified for the election of the candidate of the Standard Oil Company, or an official of that company, and indictments were found by the grand jury of that county; also in the county of Nas-sau; also in the county of Baker, and in other counties of the State, and this was repeated in 1899."

Former Senator Call then asserts that until Senator-elect Taliaferro had, as he alleges, been taken up as a candidate by the Standard Oil Company, though he had been a resident of the State of Florida for thirty speech, had never taken any active part in politica, had never shown any interest in public questions, but was identified with the corporation interests of the State. His first political office was that of the chair-man of the Democratic State executive man of the Democratic State executive committee. Mr. Call then goes on to show that the primary and election laws of the State were deliberately and frequently vio-lated by Mr. Tallaferro and his friends. He analyzes the political condition in Florida and asks that his charges be investtigated both by the Senate and the Industrial Commission. Mr. Call concludes:

"The contestant further submits that the Constitution of the United States and the laws thereof do not allow the office of a Senator to be obtained by corrupting public opinion and purchasing the office by purchasing the voters for members of legis. lature, but instead thereof require that a Senstor shall be chosen for the office, and this qualification requires that the office shall not be purchased for the Senator. The contestant further submits that such method of creating a Senator is prohibited by the constitution and laws of Florida, and made a criminal offence, where fore the contestant prays that the Senate shall order and declare the election of a Senator for the term of six years from the 4th of March, 1899, by the legislature of 4th of March, 1899, by the legislature of Florida was null and void, and that a va-

THE WHITE HOUSE CHANGES.

cantor Cultom Discusses the Plans for Enlargement. CHATTANOOGA, Nov. 25 .- Senator Culm, of Illinois, who will introduce a bill at the coming session of Congress to enlarge the White House, said yesterday: "The truth is the White House is not large enough for the official work that is being transacted there, as a part of the executive branch of the Government. President McKinley gives much time to details pertaining to his high office and there is a large clerical force employed about the White House. The volume of business has increased so much that an enlargement of the mansion is absolutely essential.

"The Government engineer states that an addition can be built at the cast end of the White House without marring the archi-tectural symmetry and beauty of the build-
